PINOCCHIO(S) EXHIBITION

PINOCCHIO(LIVE) STAGE PERFORMANCE

PROJECT

Pinocchio is a plural project composed of an exhibition and a stage performance.

Photographic research Pinocchio (s) reverses the research process realism of the puppetry arts.

Rather than animate the inanimate, it is a question of going from the living to the puppet.

The exhibition consists of 45 images.

The Pinocchio (live) performance stage the logic and tools of research photographic.

Like a rite of passage, adult performers transform child performers into puppets before they re-appropriate their child's body through dance-dance movement.

PINOCCHIO(S) - EXHIBITION

PINOCCHIO(S)

Having been given the opportunity to feature on the front cover of a specialised puppetry arts magazine, Alice Laloy decided to explore the legend of Pinocchio. More precisely, she was particularly interested in the moment of metamorphosis between the puppet and the human child. What could the body of Pinocchio look like as it transforms from puppet form into a human body?

At the same time, alluding to contemporary realist puppets, she chose to play with the quest for realism by using some basic make-up techniques to transform her child model into a puppet.

In an attempt to capture this instant of transformation, she photographed it, and she named the photo "Pinocchio 0.0"

"Pinocchio 0.0" was the starting point of a visual research project involving a number of series of photos of children portrayed in puppet-like inanimate poses.

The first series were produced in France. In the aim of reaching closer towards the disarticulated bodies of puppets, the following photo series were shot in Mongolia, in partnership with the Institut Français via the scheme "Hors les Murs", and contortion schools in Oulan Bator.

These different series together form a collection which was presented as an exhibition at the International Puppetry Festival of Charleville-Mézières (and continues to feature elsewhere).

Through her desire to pursue this process, which by nature is constantly evolving, the project has become a stage performance in which she portray children in the process of transformation, presented in a succession of three movements: Alive, Inanimate-Inert, Animated.

PINOCCHIO (LIVE)

The photographic research project is currently becoming part of a larger process of creation. Following her encounter with the contortionist children in Mongolia, the possibility of developing a stage performance has now become a concrete and pressing reality.

The project continues to evolve and undergo its own transformation. The experimental photo sessions have become the base for the project's continuity.

The work is now evolving towards a theatrical, choreographic and sound creation.

The new challenge has become that of staging the whole process of transformation and playing with the procedure: deconstructing it and bringing movement back into form. Using the ingredients provided by the research in order to bring perspective to living bodies and lifeless bodies. The inanimate and the animate. The subject and the object.

During the process of stage creation, the frontier between the inanimate and the living is abolished. It is a game involving the creation of a language and of tools within a universe where the distinction between subject and object is blurred. The object is embodied by the human, and the human is enhanced by the object. Each one is the continuity of the other one.

In order to create, tools, objects, staging and bodies are approached in the same manner. The question at hand is that of creating a coherent and independent universe in which these distinctions no longer apply. We are projected into the future. In order to feed her research, she play with the inspiration of a science-fiction oriented imagination.

The stage performance emerges from a framework of rhythm and sound. The movements are synchronised with the sounds, without us being able to distinguish which one triggers the other. Rhythm becomes movement, and vice versa.

Objects and bodies are sound-based.

The creation process is coded and itself becomes a form of organic machinery containing both the human and the object.

The elements on which the children are placed, workbenches and chairs, become moving spaces. At a given moment we find ourselves in front of a toy factory production line, in the next we are looking at Kantor's Dead Class, as we sit opposite a circle of puppet-children who look at each other or look back at us.

THE 3 PERFORMANCE TIMES

• 1st movement – FROM LIVING TO LIFELESS

This is the transformation of children into puppets. In some sort of ritual.

The make-up artist-performers follow a precise and orchestrated method. Workbenches are lined up like beds in a boarding school, I imagine a production line in a toy factory (reminiscent of Soylent Green by Richard Fleischer)

• 2nd movement – INANIMATED

What is the movement of immobility? The lifeless puppets are stored on automated chairs and subjected to the movements of these chairs. A mechanised camera flashes and takes photos of the puppets, whose postures follow the mechanical movements of their chairs.

A rhythmic game plays out between the abrupt movements of the chairs, the flexible bodies, the sudden sharp flashes and the sounds these various tools produce.

• 3rd movement – FROM LIFELESS TO LIVING

Trance-dance of the children-puppets. The re-emergence of movement. The body shakes in a burst of rapid, jerking movements, as if in a convulsive trance. Like the memory of a deeply embedded movement. This trance mutates into a sort of dance inspired by tribal dance forms.

The puppets look much like real children. Sitting postures. Straight. Contained. Controlled.

The make-up artist-performers hold out bowls and sponges to them, so that they can clean and open their eyes.

A PARTNERSHIP PROJECT

2019 : The Pinocchio (Live)#1 performance is built with different partnerships : the students-dancers of the CHAD class of the Conservatoire à Rayonnement Régional of the City of Paris, young people being professionalised in the field of live performance, the students of the Lycée Paul Poiret – Paris and the students carpenters of the Lycée Eugène Hénaff – Bagnolet.

The performance was led by Alice Laloy is his collaborators who accompanied and collaborated with the different partner groups.

2021 : The Pinocchio (Live)#2 performance is built with the students-dancers of Centre chorégraphique of Strasbourg and youg students Drama classe of Conservatoire de Colmar.

Duration : 1h10

The performance is presented in an open space and in a bi-front report.

The performance offers the spectator a multi-dimensional approach to the stage.

These elements allow different configurations, for a geometrically adjustable stage layout.

"The effect is astounding, disturbing, even, in this show that can't be told everything, so rich it is, when it lasts just over an hour. What is particularly striking here is Alice Laloy's way of getting into the art of puppetry, without using any puppets. All the disturbing strangeness of this sublime art is there, all its depth in the relationship it weaves between life and death, in the rite of passage staged by Alice Laloy, which will end with a liberation, in a return to the original myth of Pinocchio. "

Fabienne Darge

Toutelaculture.com, 11.07.2021

"What interests Alice Laloy is not history, she does not ask the question of lies but that of transformation. The one that moves from one state to another. The children, all incredibly gifted and already so professional, are "handled" as if they were made of wood. This results in bodies placed on tables, the arms bent at angles, the necks loose. It's weird, it's weird, it's fascinating. In this transformation she comes to speak of the act of growing up. (...) It shows a human who grows and who goes towards the end, how to stop that? By freezing perhaps. Isn't that what the tale is about? "

Amélie Blaustein Niddam

L'Œil de la photographie, avril 2019

"Alice Laloy is looking for a language. She writes by staging. Its approach is nourished by a dialogue between a concrete and practical logic that it maintains in "Tinkering", and a mental logic of "reverie" evolving through free associations. His theater is populated with images. With the performers and the subjects she brings together, she tries to make these visual sensations tangible according to a logic that belongs to the world she orchestrates. In his work, everything is transformation, metamorphosis, visual and sound. "
